

ROBERTS FAMILY SCHOLARSHIP

VISION & PURPOSE

In early 1937 Kate Roberts found herself in a most difficult situation. Her husband had just died, leaving her with nine children. Timing couldn't have been worse—it was the depths of the great depression.

Kate was a woman of faith, a committed Seventh-day Adventist. She was a devoted mother, not afraid of hard work, and she resolved to—somehow, some way—keep her nine children in Christian schools.

The family was faithful in church attendance and God blessed. They not only survived, they thrived! “Mother was never anxious about money,” says Rich, a twin who was just two and a half when his father died. “She kept the family finances under control and taught us to give thanks for our simple life. We learned to work together and help each other.” God answered Kate’s prayer. All nine of her children were educated in Adventist schools, and all nine became productive, contributing citizens.

In the fall of 2017, Barbara, Kate’s 6th child, was 90-years-old, in a care center and not expected to live long. Her husband, Dr. Clarence (Bud) Carnahan, began reflecting on his mother-in-law’s determination, commitment to Jesus, and the impact that Christian education had had on the Roberts family. He had been a part of the Roberts family for 70 years and wanted to honor this wonderful, exemplary family. He spearheaded the Robert Family Scholarship Fund and other family members made it a reality. The Roberts Family Scholarship is for students who need financial assistance in order to enroll at Upper Columbia Academy.
